PULLMAN'S START.

How the Foundations of a Great Industry Were Laid. Denver Special to St. Louis Globe-Demo-

Col. R. E. Goodell, of Denver, was the man who gave George M. Pullman his start in life, and at this time, when the operations of Pullman have become the center of an interest as wide as the continent it is instructive to look back at the small beginning from which grew one of the largest concerns in the world. In 1859 Colonei Goodell was superintendent of the Chicago & Alton railroad. Sleeping cars were just beginning to make their appearance on few of the roads in the East. "And pretty recky affairs they were,"

said the Colonel last night, recalling the circumstances. "They had three decks made of rattan, the top one being just the width | the fourth time. Nichol got a two-base of a man and those below widening as they descended. There was nothing that we associate with a sleeping car, no clean sheets or other conveniences, and they were, in | Klusman's long fly to Henry. fact, but makeshifts. The Alton was a ro peculiarly adapted to sleeping cars, as i made the run between its terminais in a into the matter. There were three companies making sleeping cars, in a very small way, and operating them on the New York Central and Pennsylvania. I think Pullman made his appearance then with his idea, on which he had got a patent. He was a young man of about twenty-eight or thirty, and he impressed me so strongly with his earnestness and the thoroughness with which he explained all the parts of his irvention that I concluded that I would prefer him to the established concerns, be cause he would more likely put his best efforts in the work. The road made a con-Nos. 9 and 10, and he took them to our shops at Bloomington, where the insides were removed and refitted according to his orders. Those were the first Pullman cars. The terms of the contract were that the company should stand all the expense of maintaining the outside of the car, while Pullman looked after the interior, or, on might say, the portions wherein it differed from the ordinary car, and those are practically the terms of all contracts which he

"I must say that Mr. Pullman broke his contract, and he broke it in a peculiar way He wasn't content to put in what his contract obliged him to, but every car that he turned out, and we soon had half a dozen of them, had some added convenience, some little touch that made it more attractive. He had the genius to perceive that putting money into comforts for the traveling public would return a rich re- Gray, ward, and he put in every cent that he made. It was a short time before persons buying tickets would ask if there were Pullmans on the train, and other roads were compelled to come to him. He did not rest with a few roads, as some men might have done, but extended his business until it reached the extent that we all has made with the railroads since.

"He has perhaps the most remarkable iness capacity of any man I ever met. His enterprises are managed in the exact and detailed manner. In his office he can turn to the record of any car, no matter in what part of the United States or Europe it may be running, and tell precisely what it costs, how much it earns the expenses for repairs and all other mat-ters connected with it. He forms his opinions with great rapidity and expresses them simply and clearly. Much of his business is done traveling. Presidents and superintendents of roads come to his car and in half an hour's conversation arrange the details of business for perhaps a year. While I have often heard him spoken of as autocratic. I have always found him to be easily approached by those who wished to see him, and his manner was affable and cordial. He doesn't grow enthusiastic over anything, and I never saw him excited. Colonel Goodell takes pleasure in showing a pass good on every car belonging to the company on either continent. "I have helped hundreds of men," he said, "but I can count on my fingers the fellows who seem to remember it, and George M. Pull-man is one of them. This pass is mailed every year so that it comes to me on Nev Year's morning, and I think a great deal more of it than can be measured by its mere value or convenience."

A DISEASE TO BE ERADICATED.

The Carping Against the Granting of Protection by the Authorities.

The agitator's habit of railing against the State for granting protection to any lifve bases. It was the tenth successive man or company from the violence of strik- | victory for the home team. Attendance, ing employes is a disease, which must sooner or later disappear in its own course. Truth must be seen and accepted by all finally, even through the hard facts of a great strike. When troops appear on the scene, let those who incline lightly to talk cant about capitalistic oppression of labor and unfairness on the part of the authorities test their own sincerity by asking themselves these questions: Do troops go to the secene of a strike for their own amusement or profit? Do they go there to coerce the employes of the railway companies to resume their business, to make the engineer mount his engine at the point of the bayonet, and the conductors and brakemen get aboard the cars, with the threat that otherwise they will blow their brains out? Do they corral the strikers and drive them back to their places, laying their guns and sabres over their backs? No is the answer to every

Soldiers are called out in such crises for one purpose, and that is to prevent the mobs made up of strikers and their sympathizers from committing outrages and depredations. The sight of soldiers must always be the signal to all people who reason honestly, that the strike proper, or original conflict between employers and employed, has been swallowed up in lawless assault upon some simple and unquestionable right which must ever be upheld in the face of any and all difficulty, whether claimed by thousands or by one single citizen. The government doesn't deal with individuals, but with principles, and they don't change. It is easy to imagine the situation when the action of troops in behalf of a railroad company, for example, would justly call for condemnation even more frantic than any yet heard in these misrepresentations of so-called tyranny. If, after employes had struck from dissatisfaction with their wages, and left their posts, the company had obtained control of troops and followed the strikers to their homes, just as the strikers in this case have descended on the property of the company, and then pillaged, burned and murdered in order to terrorize the owners into submission to the company's will, like the strikers of the American Railway Union, there would be heard one great national "aye" on a resolution calling every able-bodied man in the land to jump with his gun to shoot the hounds who would thus take other men's rights. property, or life into their own despotic hands. Then clamor against troops as oppressive assistants of corporations would be just with a vengeance. As it is, It is a lie conceived in anarchy and uttered in simple hostility to law and order, and

NEITHER KNOCKED OUT NOR SHAKEN BY MANNING'S MEN.

The Winning Habit Appears to Have Become Somewhat Chronic with Mr. Sharsig's Team.

Mr. Pepper was in the box yesterday, but when Manning's men attempted to turn it upside down and knock him out after the manner of the boarder when baked potatoes are served, they failed. Indianapolis went to bat first with Darby and Donohue as the visitors' battery. Darby opened the proceedings by sending two men to bases on balls. After this, loose fielding enabled the home team to bat clear around, making five runs-a lead that was never overcome. Manning came to bat and flew out to Dalrympie. Nicholl was forced out at second and Klusman was given a base on balls, only to be forced out at second on Beard's hit to Mills. This would probably have been the story of every inning, had not a rain come up from the northwest, giving Pepper a wet ball to pitch in the fourth inning. His effective curves, admitted by all to be as speedy as any seen here this season, had to give way to a straight ball, on which the visitors landed quite freely. After two men were out and Niles had reached second on a base on balls and a sacrifice hit, Darby smashed the ball to left field and brought in the first run for Kansas City. An instant later the rain began to pour and Kerins called time. After a ten-minute walt the men were ordered to the field and it began to drizzle. Manning hit the ball to left field, and time was again called for the shower to pass over. Once more the men were sent to play but only two balls were pitched to Nicholl when the third stoppage on account of rain occurred. It was nearly 6 o'clock before the clouds showed signs of breaking and the game was resumed for hit and Hernon a single, scoring two more runs. The side was joyfully retired by Indianapolis continued its batting streak in the second inning, McCarthy, Gray, night, so we concluded that we would look | Motz and Mills all hitting safely, the first three scoring. Following the series of showers Indianapolis came to bat in the fifth inning and added two more to their score on hits by McCarthy, Henry and Motz, the last being a double after two men were out. A neat double play by Westlake and Shields ended the fifth inning for Kansas City. In the sixth, Indianapolis continued its batting, Pepper getting a two-base hit to right field, after Mills tract to remodel two old passenger cars, and Shields had hit safely. McCarthy sent the new pitcher home with an opportune single. The left fielder took second on Henry's base on balls and scored on Manning's error in fielding Gray's hit. The visitors were retired by two thrilling plays on the part of Motz. Donohue reached first on a hit and was doubled up by Motz, who caught Darby's line drive. Manning then hit viciously to Motz, ending the game. It was nearly 7 o'clock and the visitors decided it would be useless to continue the struggle longer and agreed to have Kerins call the game. This action has caused a great deal of hard feeling, and C. D. Brooks, one of the colored men who has been training hard, is especially incensed. He says it is not fair to prevent him from participating in the race for prizes. He has retained Walter J. Second at Brighton Beach. NEW YORK, July 13 .- The people who went to Brighton Beach to-day not only had to put up with intense heat and bad starting, but they had to accept the decision of the judges that War Bonnet was second in the opening race, when he finished fourth. Indra and Avon got away first and raced head and head all the way to the finish, Indra getting the better of it in the last two jumps by a neck. while Half Mine was but a head behind in the third place. War Bonnet was fully a length and a half behind the three, in fourth place, but was placed second, amid the hisses of the crowd, who saw the finish. The other excitement was in the fifth race, when Don Alonzo, who was entered to be sold for $2,000, was bid up $3,000 by A. Pifferling, at which the people cheered loudly. SEYMOUR, Ind., July 13.-The scathing public rebuke administered by Congressman Jason B. Brown before the Democratic congressional convention at North Vernon yesterday to the men who succeeded by false representations in defeating him for renomination voices almost the universal expression of his constituents in this county. The convention has widened the breach between the Brown and Stockslager factions, nor will time or the party lash be capable of healing the wounds that have been inflicted. The Democratic party of Jackson county has stood by Brown through thick and thin, and Brown has stood by the party. He has been one of the leading campaign orators in the State for years, and never refused to aid them when called on. The Democracy of this county is attached to Brown for his loyalty to his friends and to his party. The contrast between the Brown and Stocklager delegates was very striking. Most of the latter's delegates were made up of men who wanted office, but failed to get it, and Brown seeing them when he began his remarkable speech, poured hot shot into them. Hon. Robert J. Tracewell, the Republican nomnee, was also in attendance and witnessed the fun. He came to this city on the same train with the Brown delegates, and many pledged him their support. The methods used in turning down Brown will give Stocklager the distinguished honor of eing the first Democratic candidate to be defeated in the Third district in the past fifty years.

Democrats Disheartened.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WINDFALL, Ind., July 13 .- A Democratic mass township convention met here this afternoon to nominate delegates to various conventions, including the county convention to-morrow. Hollingsworth Graham was chairman and Amos White secretary. Only twenty-five voters were present, three from he country. Formerly this was a Democratic stronghold. There is no enthusiasm in the party, all are disheartened with the prospect of defeat.

INDIANA DEATHS. Inventor John Comby Birdsell Passes

Away at New Carlisle. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 13 .- John Comby Birdsell, sr., inventor of the famous clover huller bearing his name, died early this morning at New Carlisle, this county, where he was visiting friends. Mr. Birdsell had been an invalid for years. A few days ago he went to New Carlisle, and while there was overcome by paralysis. He was born March 31, 1815, in Westchester county. Most of his life had been spent here. He retired from active business some years ago, and traveled extensively. At his death he was president of the Birdsell Manufacturing Company, of this city, and vice president of the St. Joseph County Savings Bank, which he helped organize. He leaves a wife and three sons, J. B., B. A. and J . Birdsell, jr. The funeral will be held Sunday at the First M. E. Church, Rev. W. H. Hickman, of Terre Haute, officiat-

BRIDGE WAR OVER. The Feeder Dam Structure Near Clay

City Burned by Incendiaries. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. CLAY CITY, Ind., July 13.-The bridge known as the feeder dam bridge was destroyed by fire early this morning. Incendiarism is the belief of the community, as there has been a great dissatisfaction over the location of this bridge ever since its construction. It is in an out-of-the-way place. This bridge has been a detriment to the county for several years, as it was wrecked by a cyclone about four years ago and has been tied in its place since by a steel rope. Some people of this community and a few citizens wno own land in that vicinity have been petitioning the county commissioners to move the bridge one mile down the river, in order to have a shorter road to Saline. The moving of this bridge has played a prominent part in politics for several years, as some of the county commissioners have pledged themselves to use their influence in moving it. The estimated Knocked Down His Detractor. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WABASH, Ind., July 13 .- A street affray which caused a sensation here this morning occurred between William Jenkins and Enoch Small, the latter a wealthy miller and business man of this city. Jenkins and Small had some difficulty over domestic affairs and Jenkins claimed that Small had written a letter to a local attorney in which he (Jenkins) was denounced as a wife beater. Meeting Small this morning Jenkins produced the letter and upbraided him for writing it. Small denied the authorship and Jenkins struck him a terrific blow in the face, knocking him down and cutting a large gash. Jenkins was arrested and fined.

Bleycle Skirts on Wabash Streets.

Wabash Plain Dealer. The divided skirt craze for women bicycle riders has at last reached Wabash. A young woman on Sinclair street, Wednesday evening, startled the staid residents of that part of the city by appearing in a very attractive cycling costume. It consisted of a waist of light material, a divided brown skirt reaching a little below the knee and brown leggins. On her head she wore a jaunty cap. The outfit was quite fetching, and was not in the least immodest, while it gave a freedom of motion that the bicyclist in long skirts knows nothing of.

COMPETING WITH THE MOON. Electric Light Company Has Been

Making a Few Concessions. Within a few days the Board of Public Works will order a number of changes in the location of electric lights in the city, and will discontinue a number of vapor lamps. For several days it has been going over the report of Thomas Tallentire upon the location and advisable changes to be made, and will act upon it probably on Monday.

Mr. Charles Perry, of the electric light company, called upon Mayor Denny yesterday and had a talk with him about the lighting of the city. There had been some vigorous protests against the moonlight schedule, and the company was accused of taking advantage of the schedule to cut off lights when they should be lighted. Mr. Perry said that for thirty days past the company had turned on the lights a half hour before they were required to, and had instructed their man at the power-house to turn on the lights on all nights when it was cloudy or there was any indication that it would be cloudy, without waiting for notice from the tower watchman to turn them on. Mr. Perry also said that the company had turned on the lights under a new moon until the moon was four days old, although, according to the provisions of the contract, they were permitted to shut off the lights under the new Mayor Denny says that Indianapolis, considering the number of street crossings, is the best lighted city in the country so far as electric lights are concerned.

MAY REVOKE THE LICENSES. Mayor Denny Investigating His Power

in Dealing with Road Houses. Mayor Denny has submitted to the city attorney for an opinion the question of his right to revoke the licenses of the saloons at Brighton Beach and Ardmore Park. He believes he has the power under the two-mile-limit law. Complaints have been made of the latter place by a number of persons, who say that passengers on the street cars returning from it engage in boisterous and obscene language, and that several times passengers have left the cars and walked rather than ride with the people returning from the place. There are road houses in Mount Jackson and West Indianapolis which the police desire to be permitted to inspect, but there is a question as to their authority to go into an incorporated town. Citizens in the northern part of the city say that crowds returning from the road houses north of the city often make the night hideous with their carousing and boisterousness.

Board of Works Routine. At the regular meeting of the Board of Public Works, yesterday, petitions were granted for the vacation of the first alley north of Hollis street, from Tecumseh street to the first alley west of Tecumseh street and the third alley south of Mc Carty street, from Sullivan street to the first alley west of Sullivan street. The action taken on the resolution for cementing the south sidewalk of Ohio street, from Delaware street to the first alley west of Delaware street, was rescinded, the property owners having been granted permission to lay the walk under private contract. No remonstrance being filed final action was taken upon the resolution for bricking the south sidewalk of Madison street from Archer to Hanna street.

A petition for a local sewer in the first alley west of Meridian street, from Ray to arty street was allowed Vouchers for the pay rolls were approved as follows: Street repair gang, 8865.25; sewer gang, $119.10; bridge gang, The final estimate was allowed and the assessment roll approved in the following improvements: In behalf of Fulmer & Seibert, for the construction of a main sewer in Meridian street from First to Second street, and in behalf of Peters & Dunn for cementing the east sidewalk of Park avenue from Eleventh or Thirteenth street to Fifteenth street.

Attention to the Road Houses. There will be a special meeting of the Board of Public Safety to-day to consider plans for enforcing the closing laws at the various road houses about the city. Most of the special officers sworn in on account of the strike troubles will be dismissed at that time, but a few of them will be re-tained to enable the police to establish a surveillance over the road houses. Mayor Denny says the proprietors of these places must comply with the laws and the police will see that they do.

Agitators Must Work.

Mayor Denny says he believes next winter will find a great many people out of employment in this city and thinks that steps should be taken as soon as the strike troubles are settled to provide work for the worthy unemployed. He thinks it good policy to begin early. He also expresses himself very emphatically upon the 'agi-tators." He says he would favor giving these men to understand that they must work for their living.

Want Trenches to Settle. Property owners on South Pennsylvania street appeared before the Board of Public Works yesterday and asked that the improvement of that street from Maryland to South street be delayed until the sewer trenches settle.

Indian Service Examination.

Arrangements have been completed by the Civil-service Commission to examine candidates for positions in the Indian service. The positions to be illed are superintendents at $1,200 to $2,000 per annum; principal teachers, at $720 to $900; advanced primary teachers, at $660 to $720; primary teachers, $500 to $500, and matrons, from $500 to $720. The examination is limited to two days, except for matron, which is limited to seven hours. One of the examinations will be held in this city on July 20.

Tolleston Brief Filed.

Yesterday the State filed in the Supreme Court a brief in the suit against the Tolleston Club for the possession of land in Lake county. The State bases its claim on the congressional "awamp-land act" of 1850, while the club lays claim to the property under the act of 1870. By the act of 1850 the State was to come into possession of young woman, returned a verdict of guilty swamp or overflowed land wherever prop-

FOUR FIREMEN

NO BASIS FOR THE REPORT THAT THEY WERE GOING ON STRIKE.

Dillon-Street and Brightwood Shops Will Probably Resume on Monday -Engineer Lamphier's Case.

A number of trainmen on the Big Four and one of the officials of the road were asked what foundation there was for the report that the firemen on the divisions out of Cincinnati were to be called out by Chairman of the Grievance Committee Odell. They said all they knew about it was what they had read in the papers. They thought there was not the least foundation for it, two or three of the men saying that the Big Four had received the worst of this strike, although it did not haul Pullman cars. The general expression was that the troubles on the Big Four were over. The shops on Dillon street, at Brightwood and at Bellefontaine will probably be started up again on Monday. At these shops most of the repairing of locomotives is done. The Big Four has been troubled so much at Mattoon that one of the minor officials says it would not surprise him were the Big Four to abandon its shops at that point altogether. He was confident that less men would be employed there in

On the Wabash division, another division on which there was a good deal of disloyalty to the company, everything moved smoothly yesterday, and the men who returned to work feel that it was fortunate for them that they were allowed to return to the service of the company, although it is claimed that the men went out owing to deception on the part of the leaders of the A. R. U. At Cincinnati the switching is being done without trouble and freight trains are being made up or as they come in from the west delivered to connections. A committee called upon General Manager McDoel, of the Monon, to intercede in behalf of engineer Lamphier, who refused to pull out the Monon train with Pullmans They say that Lamphier has repented and was imposed upon by false friends. The road has not yet decided whether it will reinstate Lamphier or not. When the first telegrams were received in this city anrouncing that the strike had been declared C. Clark, of the local lodge of the A. R. U., denied it, and said a cipher message had been agreed upon by which the local union would have been notified of it before it was known to the press. Later developments showed that Clark was right in declaring that the strike was not off. A telegram from Debs announcing that it was not declared off was received with enthusiasm at the hall. The car manned by the Pennsylvania Company, and variously styled the "pest ear." Fort Darlington and Darlington's rolling arsenal, was taken out of service yesterday, but detectives were still kept

DEBS FOUND ENCOURAGEMENT. Foolish Work of a Recent Board of Arbitrators.

New York Evening Post. One element in bringing Debs and his American Railway Union to their present dictatorial attitude is not clearly understood in the East. It will be remembered that a strike occurred on the Great Northern railroad a few weeks ago and was amicably settled through the efforts of a committee of St. Paul and Minneapolis business men. An incident which followed this settlement did not attract the attention which it deserved. The president of the railroad held that it was not bound to reinstate in its employ men who were found guilty of any criminal offense against the United States, who had maiciously injured the company's property or who had placed the lives of passengers or the property of the company in danger by abandoning trains. The question was submitted to the arbitrators, who decided that the agreement bound the road to reinstate and pay men then under arrest and awaittrial on the charge of malicious destruction of property, men who had interfered with the running of trains and men who had abandoned trains in inaccessible places. This was the same thing as saying that the railroad could exert no discipline over its employes, and it was entirely natural that Debs should think himself warranted in ordering rallroads not to run Punman cars when a committee of business men in St. Paul and Minneapolis had given such encouragement to the notion that employes might manage the property as they chose.

A Possible Pope. Pittsburg Dispatch. Cardinal Rampolla is now looked upon as the almost certain successor of Leo XIII. He has not come to the front at a rush, as sometimes happens. He has grown slowly but steadily. Fortuitous circumstances have aided bim, too, by removing from his path poweful rivals. Three years ago Cardinal Parocchi was looked upon as the coming man. The trend of events has put him in a sense out of the question. Taen Cardinal La Salbetta was mentioned and then Cardinals Simeoni and San Felice, and then the name of Cardinal Lavigeria, the apostle of Rome, against the African slave trade and Tippo Tib, pushed all the others to the rear. But Lavigerie is dead, and Rampolla is the man of the hour. Everything is in his favor. He is young, a he is able, he is avallable, and availability here, as in American politics, is a strong point. Then Cardinal Rampolla is an Italian, born in Sielly, and none but an Italian can now become Pope without stirring up trouble in Europe. The Pope who may be is a man who is splendidly equipped mentally as well as physically. Born in Sicily, he is still in the littles as to age, and his training has been at once severe and thorough, for he was educated by the Jesuits. From the very earliest time of his service in the church he has filled high and responsible places, and in his dealings with rulers and governments he is implicitly trusted by Leo XIII. Rampolia has the reputation of being cool under any emergency, a man of resources at all times. a worker of the Gladstone order, a man of the most temperate methods and the most even disposition, and at the same time capable of ruling with a firm hand; one fully confident of his own powers, fully self-reliant.

A Sympathy Strike.

Chicago Tribune. "Children," said Mr. Chugwater emphatically, "close that plano!" "What's the matter, father?" inquired one of the two little girls in blue. "The matter," he answered, locking the instrument and putting the key in his pocket, "is that the musicians of the city have been called out, and you're going to join that strike out of sympathy for the neighbors."
